New Oneg Procedure

Our Kiddush / ONEG / Holiday Supplies bins were reorganized over the High Holidays.

During Yom Kippur, Sherry and Jim and I went to the basement storage unit at KUF and sorted out the plates and cutlery and cups, along with other ONEG supplies.

Each container was filled with an unsorted mess of odds and ends. We emptied all of the containers, sorted all of the items, and then refilled each one with matching items. For example, one container is now all cutlery, another is plates, and another is cups and so on. Each container is now clearly labeled.

Now, instead of shlepping all of our supplies every time we have a Shabbat service, we will use the storage bins as a fixed store from which we only pick needed items.

We can fill one box from the store which we use to caddy items to the kitchen. At the end of the day, the leftover items are delivered back to the basement and placed back into their appropriate storage bin.

This enables us to keep our supplies orderly and to more easily track our inventory. For example, we are down to our last 30 wine glasses but we have enough plastic knives to last a year.

If we can adhere to this new practice, we can ensure an easier time for the ONEG organizers, and prevent overstocking or running out of supplies. I will document this new procedure on our website and include these instructions with the ONEG notice.
